

Carter Inflation Bills Assured Quick Action By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's voluntary remedies for inflation are assured of quick congressional consideration, with hearings beginning Tuesday.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., said Friday his House Banking subcommittee on economic stabilization will hold five days of hearings but they will go beyond the proposals Carter outlined Friday.

Moorhead said he agrees with Carter that wage and price controls should not be used to stem inflation.

But he said his subcommittee will consider requiring businesses planning major price increases to notify the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Carter's program does not include such a requirement, but Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said the administration hopes big businesses will tell the government in advance if they plan big price increases.

Carter emphasized he would use a labor-management team which includes AFL-CIO president George Meany and Reginald Jones, chairman of General Electric Co., to work to reduce inflation.

This would continue the work of a group first set up for former President Gerald R. Ford and now meeting unofficially with former Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop remaining as chairman.

Meany said he and Jones "have informed President Carter that we would be willing to discuss with the President's advisers in a voluntary, nonofficial manner the major economic problems facing the nation."

Chairman Charles L. Schultze of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers said targets will be to reduce inflation to between 4 and 4.5 per cent by the end of 1979 and unemployment to between 5 and 5.5 per cent. Consumer prices have surged recently to an annual increase rate of about 9 per cent, but Carter said the underlying rate is about 6 per cent. Unemployment was 7.3 per cent in March.

Carter said at a nationally televised news conference Friday that getting the inflation rate down will require a patient, voluntary effort and that "no one should look to government for easy answers because there are none."

Some Dam Projects To Be Reconsidered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is restoring money for nearly half of the 30 water and dam projects he has considered scrapping but is holding firm on the others.

Reports of the President's decision came from congressmen and state officials who were notified Friday. Carter, who had threatened all 30 with extinction, said he would announce his decisions formally Monday.

Few seemed willing to surrender to adverse decisions. "I will say a special prayer for the President and hope that his heart won't be so cold," said Rep. Wes Watkins, D-Okla., after learning a flood control project in his state had been eliminated.

Carter's decision may not be a final blow to the projects because Congress could restore the money to the budget.

The survivors include two of the largest projects — the Tennessee Tombigbee Waterway and the Central Arizona Project. The victims include the Richard B. Russell Dam in Carter's home state of Georgia, a project he supported while governor.

Of the 30 projects, Carter proposed no federal money for 15, full funding for eight, partial funding for five and withholding of money for two pending further study.

The water development projects had been threatened since Carter said he would halt federal spending on them in the 1978 budget unless reviews proved them economically necessary and environmentally safe.

There was no indication how much money Carter expected the chopping and paring to save.

Predictably, congressmen whose projects were axed pledged to appeal to Congress. Those whose projects passed the test praised Carter's foresight.

"I'm proud of my President," said Gov. Cliff Finch of Mississippi, after learning that the $1.8 billion Tennessee-Tombigbee project lived.

"... The formal decision will be made by Congress, not the administration," said Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., whose Oahe Irrigation Project was slashed.

At his news conference Friday, Carter said his aides were preparing an analysis of the reasons for his decisions. "We have tried to do this in a very careful and methodical way," Carter said. "Combined with it, we will publish and adhere to a very strict list of criteria in the future for approval of the projects."

Some of the projects had been in limbo for two months. The first hint of danger came in mid-February, when Carter, his administration barely a month old, told Congress he wanted to lop off $289 million in the 1978 budget for 19 water projects. He also said he was ordering a complete review of all 320 ongoing water resource projects.

He later changed his mind about three of the projects, restoring them to federal spending.

Young Likens Arab Hatred To Klan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty Arab U.N. delegations have expressed surprise to U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young for saying Arab hatred of Jews reminded him of Ku Klux Klan hatred of blacks.

The Arabs took issue with Young in a letter released Friday night while the State Department was scrambling to patch up any diplomatic damage resulting from a remark Young made Thursday when he said he thought the South African government was illegitimate.

"All the Arabs differentiate between Zionism and Judaism," the Arab group said in the letter. "We consider Judaism a sacred religion as Islam and Christianity."

Zionism is the movement to create a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

Amin Helmy II, the Arab League U.N. observer, released the letter to reporters. He said the group was indignant when first learning of the remark but decided to soften the letter after a meeting Young had with Ambassador Ali Humaidan of the United Arab Emirates.

Young excused himself to Humaidan saying "he was new, he was ignorant, he was learning," Helmy said.

Young's remarks on Arab-Jewish feelings were made in a closed-door meeting with the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations on March 30. Libya complained about the remarks at a U.N. Security Council meeting on Tuesday.

Spokesmen for Young declined to release the remarks on grounds they were made off the record. But Richard Cohen, press spokesman for the Jewish organization, said he took notes which showed Young said:

"I had seen hatred by people with Ku Klux Klan mentality based on ignorance in the United States. But in Jordan, I had my first experience of hatred on the part of intellectuals. It brought terror to my heart."

"I understood Israel's need for military support. I understood why Israel had to be strong and secure to cope with the hatred of its neighbors."

The Arab group said it considered the matter closed in view of "clarifications" Young gave Humaidan, and that they wanted to establish with Young "a fruitful dialogue and the best cooperation in the future."

Young, America's first black ambassador to the United Nations, was asked in an Associated Press interview Thursday if he thought the government of South Africa was illegitimate. "Yeah," he responded.

South African Foreign Minister R.F. Botha summoned U.S. Ambassador William Bowdler Friday in Cape Town to ask about Young's remark.

The U.S. State Department then informed South Africa the remark did not reflect official U.S. policy. Spokesman Hodding Carter III said that although the United States does not agree with "a number of practices of South Africa, it is incorrect to say that the government of South Africa is illegitimate."

Ohio EPA Happy With Pollution Fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency Friday pointed out the progress made in reducing particulate air pollution in recent years, but a northern Ohio citizen's group contends the progress has been too slow.

Nearly 2,000 nonresidential sources of air pollution had not complied with state control regulations by Friday's deadline, the Ohio EPA reports.

But some of the 1,984 sources such as industries and schools were expected to be in compliance soon, the agency said. Others may obtain extensions or face enforcement action.

Library Sets Open House

PAPERBACK BOOK RACK — A carousel of paperback books has been added to the new look of the reading room in the Pickaway County District Public Library. The rack was made possible through the efforts of the Friends of the Library. Mrs. O. C. West, founding president of the organization, donated an antique quilt to the group to be used as a raffle prize, and the proceeds were used to purchase the paperback rack. The Friends are sponsoring an open house and tea Sunday to promote National Library Week.

The Pickaway County District Public Library, which passed the quarter million mark for materials circulated to the public last year, will unveil its remodeled look at an open house and tea Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The festivities are sponsored by the Friends of the Library, which became an active organization Nov. 12, 1975, to support the local library in any area and to promote interest in its services.

In 1976, the total circulation reached 252,301, including 147,833 for adults, 104,468 for juveniles, and 6,477 books by mail.

The circulation figure included books, book by mail, periodicals, recordings, framed art prints, and films.

There were 13,323 registered card holders in 1976.

The Bookmobile traveled 7,311 miles in 1976 under the direction of Jane Jacobs and assisted by Mrs. Christine Morgan and Mrs. Elsie Bartholomew.

Circulation of the Bookmobile was 98,333.

Kay Sahr, the Children's Librarian, conducted a series of pre-school story hours for 4 and 5 year olds, and a special series for 2 and 3 year olds.

Special programs were conducted around Holidays, and a series of Saturday morning film presentations were held.

Several adult services programs were held at the library during 1976, and the library continued its association with the multi-county group, Ohio Valley Area Libraries, the first legally funded Area Library Service Organization in Ohio.

Eleanor Craig is Librarian, and her staff includes reference librarians

Jessie Cummings, Eleanor Hancher, and Fritz Cox; Lee Anderson, circulation; Kay Sahr, Children's Librarian; Patricia Gentzel, clerk; and student assistants, Rhonda Schlotzhauer, Debbie Grewell, and Cheryl Spangler.

Members of the Library Board of Trustees are Mrs. Tom Bennett, president; Ralph May, vice president and OVAL trustee; Mrs. John Fissell, secretary; and Mrs. Ray Horch, Robert M. Johnson, Mrs. Vaughn Dresbach, and Lemuel Weldon.

Clerk of the board is Mrs. Verna Grewell.

In 1976, the staff added 4,817 catalogued and processed books, 4,945 uncatalogued paperbacks, 66 new popular fiction, 120 Josten's popular fiction, 167 recordings, and 5 microprints.

Carter Kills Georgia Project

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter apparently has killed a huge dam project in his home state, a project fought by environmentalists but supported by many state officials — including former Gov. Jimmy Carter.

As governor, Carter had agreed to the dam and lake project, but reports on Friday indicated he has decided to stick to a February decision to cut off funds for the $276 million dam on the Savannah River, which forms the border between Georgia and South Carolina.

The Atlanta Constitution today quoted an unnamed Capitol Hill source as saying Carter's decision means "the Richard B. Russell Dam is dead for the moment and maybe forever."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a supporter of the dam, said he was disappointed to hear a similar report in Washington.

President Carter said Friday that he had completed his review of 30 water projects he proposed scrapping earlier this year and would officially announce their fate Monday.

The dam, which has been in the works since 1961, was to be completed by 1983 and eventually was to create a 26,650 acre lake as well as produce electricity. Cost estimates began at $78 million but have increased steadily.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers has continued work on the project with fiscal 1977 money since Carter's earlier announcement and has almost completed a channel to divert the river during dam construction. Work on the dam itself has not begun.

Environmentalists said the benefits of electricity produced by the dam would be dwarfed by damage done to the river and surrounding land which would be flooded.

Dr. Allen S. Stocks of Augusta, Ga., founder of the Friends of the Savannah which opposed the project, called it "unnecessary, expensive and destructive, a porkbarrel from the beginning."

The project has been supported by most top officials in South Carolina and Georgia, including Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

"At a time when our country has an increasing demand for new domestic energy sources, the Richard Russell electric project will help to meet that requirement," Nunn said recently.

VP Assured Policy Belongs To Citizens

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale has defended the Carter administration's open discussion of foreign affairs, declaring "U.S. foreign policy belongs to all of the people."

The vice president, on a political tour, told Iowa Democrats Friday night that he was "proud to be the vice president in an administration in which the president will stand up and tell the American people what he intends to do in foreign affairs."

And, said Mondale, "I am proud our President, in a sharp break with precedent, has said a central and cherished objective of foreign policy ... will be to use the strength and power of the American people to speak up for human rights all over the world. It is in this way that we can restore the public trust so precious to American life."

The vice president did not mention directly criticism of the White House and Carter's attempts to open up foreign policy decisions. But he said foreign policy had long been conducted behind closed doors and was believed to be "so occult that only a few had the ability to take part in it."

Mondale spoke at a fund-raiser for Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, on the first stop in a series of political appearances over the weekend in the Midwest.

Today, after breakfast with Democratic party leaders, it was on to Detroit for a tour of the newly opened Renaissance Center, a skyscraper in downtown Detroit, and more party functions.

The trip is not designed to announce policy but to lend the prestige of the vice presidency to local Democratic politics. The Democratic party is paying the vice president's costs.

Gone is the tension of his chartered jet in a tight political campaign. On Friday, a staff member handed out candy aboard the Air Force jet that carried him to Des Moines, and before takeoff the vice president chatted informally with reporters.

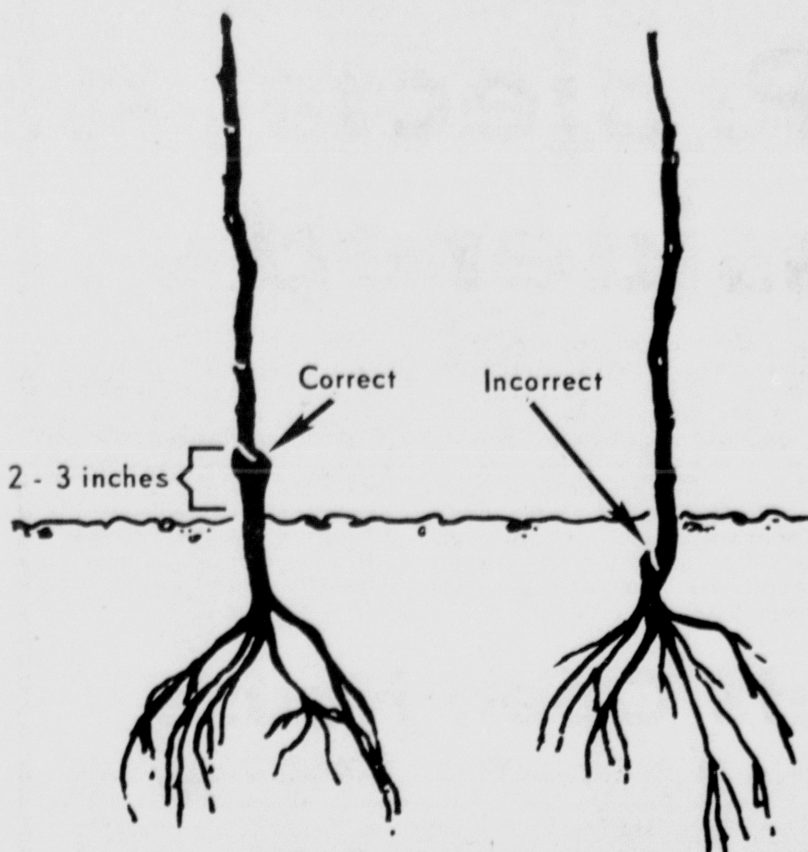

President Carter has refrained from similar political trips, and he is not expected to make any during his first year in the White House. So the job falls to the vice president.

colonization, says Thomas M. Stockdale, Extension Wildlife Conservationist at The Ohio State University. Corn is one of the primary crops injured by red-winged blackbirds.

In September, 1976, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Animal Damage Control, in cooperation with the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, conducted a survey to assess field corn damage in the state.

Two classes of damage were studied: primary and secondary. Primary damage is the result of the red-winged blackbirds puncturing the corn kernel, when it is in the milk stage, and withdrawing the soft germ. This stage occurs during the latter part of July and early part of August. Secondary damage results from the husks being torn open by the birds and the influx of moisture in the ripening ears of corn. Often these ears will mold or sprout, depending on the weather.

The sample included 891 fields of about 17,820 acres, which represents about one-half of 1 per cent of the total corn acreage in Ohio for 1976. The total damage was estimated at one third of 1 per cent, which is one-tenth per cent lower than in 1975. This represented an overall loss of about 1,300,000 bushels of corn valued at $2,522,000.

Primary damage was placed at .27 per cent, which was nearly the same as primary damage in 1975. Because of this activity Ohio farmers lost about one million bushels of corn, with an estimated value of $1,940,000. Secondary damage was a problem only in the Lake Erie Region and in Ashtabula County, with damage figures of .06 per cent and .02 per cent, respectively.

The Southwest Region of the state had the highest primary and total damage estimate at .58 per cent, while the Central Region had the lowest at .15 per cent.

Progress By Accident

Recorded in the annals of many of the great discoveries and inventions are numerous accidental causes. The inventor who started looking for a solution to one problem only to find a more important side effect. The discoverer who set forth in search of a new sea route but discovered a new continent.

A French botanist a few years ago may have started another such accidental discovery with far-reaching implications when he threw a discarded chemical out the window of the lab at the French National Scientific Research Center. The solution landed on a withered plant. Within a short time the botanist noted the plant had been rejuvenated into a healthy specimen.

The discarded chemical was an auxin-type hormone, centrophoxine. It wasn't long before researchers were using the drug in tests which indicated some success in slowing the aging process. In one test, mice injected with the hormone lived lifespans 25 per cent longer than average.

Relatively little is known about the aging process. One fact has been observed: An accumulation of a pigment called lipofuscin in the nerve cells of persons who are aged. This pigment accumulation in some cases has been lessened with dosages of centrophoxine.

No one is proclaiming a fountain of youth as a result of successes so far achieved, but the drug centrophoxine may be another of those accidental discoveries with a bright future.

Karen Quinlan Was Laughing

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Two years ago today, Joseph and Julia Quinlan were awakened at 2 a.m. by an excruciating phone call.

"Mrs. Quinlan? Your daughter Karen is very sick. Unconscious. The doctor wants you to come to the hospital as soon as possible."

They assumed she had been in an accident. Karen always drove so fast. But their 21-year-old daughter had drifted into a netherworld known medically as "vigil coma." She suffered irreversible brain damage.

Today Karen Quinlan lies on a water bed in a yellow-painted room on the second floor of the Morris View Nursing Home in rural New Jersey. Her body has shrunk to 70 pounds, and is rigid. Her head is mobile and her eyes open and close, but cannot see.

An armed Morris County Sheriff's Deputy is posted at a wooden table outside Karen's door at all times, and the window blind in her room is drawn and taped tight to the sill. More than a year has passed since the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that Karen Ann could be removed from the respirator that was believed to be keeping her alive, so that she might "die with dignity." Karen did not die, and the Quinlans still fight to preserve her dignity. Julian Quinlan was offered $100,000 for a picture of Karen in bed. She still winces, remembering. "Can you think of anything more horrible?"

The Quinlans will visit Karen today, as they have almost every day for the past 24 months. Joe will drop in at the nursing home on his way to work early in the morning, and again after work at 4:30. Julie will drive over at 3 in the afternoon, after her secretarial job at the rectory of their Catholic church, Our Lady of the Lake. Perhaps, as often happens, they'll pay Karen another visit in the evening, after dinner.

Their two younger children, Mary Ellen and John, visit their sister every few days. Always alone. "It's an emotional experience," Joe Quinlan says. "It's really easier to see Karen when you're alone."

Julie says, "You never know what to expect. When she's peaceful, you feel peaceful. But when she's restless, you don't want to leave until she is calm again."

Because I am writing a book with the Quinlans, I have seen the emotional trauma this mother and father endure during their visits. Karen goes through "sleep" and "awake" cycles. When she is awake, she sometimes stares off into space, unseeing. At other times, her head moves agitatedly from side to side, her eyes dart about the room and her face grimaces, giving the impression she is crying out, as though in pain. These are the "restless" times. The Quinlans know she cannot feel pain because the "cognitive" brain function has ceased. ("She does not feel," says Dr. Richard Watson, Morris View's medical director. "If she could feel, the way her body is twisted, she would die of the pain.")

But the illusion of anguish is distressing. Joe and Julie have never quite grown accustomed to it. They kiss Karen and stroke her forehead, and talk to her lovingly until she finally goes to sleep. The parents know, because they have been told by doctors, that their daughter's writhing movements are only primitive reflexes — "but when you love someone, and she is still alive, to the extent that she is alive, you want to touch her and talk to her."

Karen lies on a water bed, a vain expedient to control the deep bedsores that are chronic on her 70-pound body. The brain death has caused her limbs to contract and grow rigid in a fetal posture. But the nurses keep her covered to the shoulders. And Julie buys pink and blue nylon nightgowns, then splits them down the back so that they can be slipped around Karen whenever a visitor is expected.

Because she is fed a high-vitamin diet through tubes inserted into her nostrils, Karen's face remains round and, when she is sleeping, the face seems that of a pale, pretty child.

Since Karen was transferred to the nursing home last June, Dr. Watson says, "There have been no tough medical decisions. One morning she had trouble breathing, and she turned blue, and an inexperienced nurse called the Quinlans and they rushed over. It was five a.m., and people were running around frantically. Subsequently, Karen coughed up a mucous plug, which is very common in tracheotomies, when the patient doesn't breathe well because of cerebral disease. That's probably happened 30 times since then. And she's run a fever from time to time." No "heroic" measures will be taken to preserve her hopeless life in a medical emergency, the physician has said.

No one can predict how much longer Karen can live in her debilitated state. Dr. Watson says, "When she dies, I think it's going to happen rather suddenly."

So the waiting goes on. The Quinlans have settled into a routine that closely resembles normalcy. The church, the family, the dog, the two cats — everything functioning in a semblance of order. Even the visits to Karen seem "normal" now.

Joe and Julie believe that "God has a plan for Karen," and they are fortified by the conviction that their tragedy has benefited mankind, by focusing world attention on the issue of death with dignity in the age of technological machines that can prolong hopeless life indefinitely. They had believed that with the respirator gone, Karen would "pass into the loving hands of the Lord" — and sooner or later, she will — "she will be with Him always, and that is everything."

There will be painful memories today. "But there are always memories," Julia says. "Little things set you off."

Not long ago, she was shopping for a music box for Mary Ellen. "I was listening to all the different tunes, and suddenly one of the boxes played 'To Elise.' That's the song Karen always played when she sat down at the piano. I burst into tears, and the poor saleswoman felt terrible. She thought she had done something wrong, because, of course, she didn't know."

Unless one has been through it, nobody could know...

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Calvert Cray is a stock analyst who studies the law and the facts of court suits rather than financial statements.

Perhaps unique in that role, the young lawyer is also a reflection of the times, when government antitrust suits and patent infringement claims have the potential of producing sharp, sometimes prolonged, price changes.

Matters of law are ubiquitous in business because, as Cray observes, the law itself is growing. Judicial, legislative and regulatory actions are producing not only more decisions but often more complex ones.

This near constant activity accounts for the position that Cray, 33, occupies with the brokerage house of Bache Halsey Stuart, where he attempts and often succeeds in predicting the outcome of major lawsuits.

While Cray has written about more than 400 companies, he concentrates on four concerns prominent both in the courts and before the public: Xerox, Eastman Kodak, American Telephone & Telegraph and International Business Machines. His knowledge of the law, and how the facts of a case relate to the law, permit him to make judgments that ordinary securities analysts cannot. And he states his views without equivocation.

Regarding the government antimonopoly case against IBM, he stated in an interview: "I feel IBM is on very, very strong ground. I've never seen a case so one-sided as this one. This is a case that should not have been brought."

Nevertheless, he said, he perceives the judge leaning in the direction of the government, which prepares him for a possible decision contrary to his view. "In that case, I am confident it would be reversed," he said.

"They have nothing," he added for emphasis. "Their case (the government's) is so transparent, so weak, so poor..." The government's own witnesses, he said, have demonstrated that the Sherman Act has not been violated.

Cray has backed his opinions with money. Shortly before joining the brokerage house, while working as an attorney, he became convinced that a $250 million judgment to Telex Corp. against IBM would be reversed.

Four days before the appeals court acted, Cray gathered his available cash, some $3,000, and purchased call options in IBM, exercisable at $200 a share. At the time, the shares were selling for $160 each.

After the reversal, IBM's stock did rise, although there is no telling how much other market factors might have been involved. Still, having been able to buy IBM at $200 a share, he profited from having it rise to $228 within a few weeks. The price now is in excess of $270 a share.

Unlike outside lawyeranalysts who operate part time or on a consulting basis, Cray devotes full time to his calling. Not content merely to know the law, he seeks also to know all he can about the condition of the company being analyzed and the industry in which it operates.

Poster winners, in a Saltcreek PTO contest were Lynn Fraunfelter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fraunfelter, Route 4. Her brother Greg was second place winner.

In the "Garden Gossip" column, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones reported that crocus, a sure sign of spring, were blooming in the area. Miss Marvina Holderman found some growing among the ivy around their home.

Herbert Anderson, an employee of the local Ralston-Purina plant was preparing for his retirement. A party was given in his honor and he was presented with a fly rod and automatic reel for his service at the mill since 1945.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our 10 year old son seems to be withdrawn and unhappy. One of his teachers strongly advises that we have some psychological tests done. My husband is distressed by this. I hope you can discuss this problem. Perhaps it will make our decision easier.

— Mrs. H.D., Pa.

Dear Mrs. D.:

It is a testimonial to the teachers at your son's school that their interest and training are sufficient to recognize a child's emotional needs.

Far too often parents resent a teacher's reaction to a child, especially when the suggestion of psychological testing crops up. I doubt if these parents would react in the same way if they were told by the school nurse or doctor that their child had a chronic cough and should have an X-ray of the chest.

Yet there really should be no difference between a test of the body and a test of the mind if the child is to be the beneficiary. Parents should be extremely grateful that teachers are as interested in the total child as they are in the three R's.

Some parents totally block out the fact that a child has an emotional problem and they refuse to confront the issue. Teachers who constantly observe children at school see them in another light, and can more objectively evaluate them and their relationship with other students in a non-family setting.

Sometimes a parent will refuse to accept the teacher's suggestion for psychological testing. An unrealistic sense of personal guilt and embarrassment thus deprives the child of the testing that might pinpoint the cause of emotional conflict and turbulence.

Testing is performed by highly trained specialists and clinical psychologists. The interpretation of the battery of tests that are given can play an important role in the destiny of the child. If there is evidence that psychological guidance is necessary, treatment can be started before problems become deeply ingrained and difficult to erase.

Not in all instances is psychological treatment necessary. Very often an overlooked area of conflict or confusion may come to light and quickly remedied.

Your son will not find the testing experience unpleasant. He may, in fact, enjoy taking them and then speaking out his problems to the friendly person who knows how to talk to children on their own level.

Ohio's first official settlement at Marietta in 1788 began with the blessing of George Washington, who said: "No colony in America was settled under more favorable auspices. I know many of the settlers personally and there never were men, better calculated to promote the welfare of a community." — AP

Pilot Ejects From Fighter

GROVEPORT, Ohio (AP) — "Everything burst into flames when it hit," Dale Goodman said, describing the crash Friday of a jet fighter plane in a field about 100 yards from where he was standing.

"Then the ammo went off and boy it really started popping," said Goodman, who had been preparing to plow the field when the plane hit.

The Ohio Air National Guard A-7D, armed with 20 millimeter ammunition and en route to gunnery practice at Camp Atterbury, Ind., crashed into the field shortly after taking off from Rickenbacker Air Force Base.

Moments earlier, the pilot, Capt. James D. MacGeorge, 33 of Columbus, had ejected safely and parachuted to the ground about 500 yards from the wreckage. MacGeorge is assigned to the guard's 121st Tactical Fighter Wing at Rickenbacker.

There were initial reports of engine trouble with the aircraft, a spokesman at Rickenbacker said.

The Air Force was investigating the crash.

Circleville Junior Women Sponsor Youth Art Show

YOUTH ART MONTH—Michelle Crawford, left and Jason Ehrlich displayed their art work to Mrs. Dwight Robinson, a member of the Circleville Junior Women's Club Fine Arts Committee.

In observance of National Youth Art Month, the Pickaway County Library in conjunction with Circleville Junior Women's Club will sponsor a Youth Art Show during the last two weeks of April.

Students from grades 1 through 12 will have their work on display at the Library to call attention to the important role art should play in our educational system.

Art is vital to fostering the creative process. This process is described as sensitivity or the awareness of problems and people, fluency or the ability to produce a large number of ideas, flexibility which is adjustment to changing situations, and originality among other traits of creativity. We need our children learning how to think creatively since they may be facing problems we can't even foresee now.

Mrs. Gary Sahr at the children's room in the Library will be hanging the show April 18th with the assistance of the Fine Arts Committee of Circleville Junior Women; Mrs. Mel Ehrlich, Ch., Mrs. Dwight Robinson, Mrs. Ed Peters, and Mrs. Fred Kennedy. The art was obtained from Circleville high school art teacher Miss Van Sickle, and elementary art teacher, Mrs. Burmaster.

Takes Time Out for Baby

Still Loses 75 Pounds Credits Conway Diet Institute

Mrs. Kathy Zimmerman, has lost 75 pounds and reached her goal weight while following the Conway 1000 Calorie Diet and attending the weekly Insight Seminars.

The interesting part of Kathy's story is that mid way through her weight loss she took time out to have a baby daughter. Six weeks after delivery, Kathy went back to the Conway program and lost the last 33 pounds. She's now at goal weight and 75 pounds lighter. Kathy, a registered nurse, says "I felt miserable when I was overweight. I knew the harm obesity was doing to my health. I had never been able to diet successfully before. I found the Conway Diet easy to follow, nutritious and satisfying. The Insight seminars were stimulating and informative. The interaction with other members was a real support."

As you, the average American, struggle to catch up with record high utility bills, you are probably a little frustrated and upset. The following information concerning how you may be making interest-free loans to the utility companies is from The Action Faction, printed by the Consumer Research Center. Don't be tempted to not read it because it gets a little technical. Just get the general idea: Your utility bill may include federal taxes that won't be paid for years. In the meantime, investor-owned utilities keep your money (interest free) and do whatever they want with it. This is perfectly legal, and good business sense for utility companies, really.

But, questions now may arise concerning this practice because of rising utility bills. Should the government continue to allow the consumer, to be billed for taxes that may not be paid for years?

The Action Faction newsletter is free, published monthly, and includes all types of consumer issues and teaching information. It's not copyrighted and paid for by a government grant. Write: Consumer Research Center, Inc., 1012 14th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

If you receive your electricity from a large investor-owned utility, every time you pay your electric bill you are probably, in effect, giving that utility an interest-free loan. Under current federal tax laws, most state utility commissions allow private companies to charge their customers for taxes the companies will not pay to the government for several years, if at all. The dollar amounts of these overcharges and the laws which allow them are examined in a detailed, but very readable report published by the Environmental Action Foundation and the National Consumer Information Center. The booklet, Phantom Taxes in Your Electric Bill, describes how tax breaks—primarily accelerated depreciation and the investment tax credit—certain accounting methods which are permitted by federal law are used by private utilities to charge consumers significantly more for federal income taxes than they actually pay.

In 1975, EAF and NCIC report, the 150 largest investor-owned power companies charged their customers a total of $2,198,770,163 for federal income taxes, but paid only $727,869,518 to the government - a difference of almost $1.5 billion. Of these 150 individual companies, 134 charged consumers more for their taxes than they actually paid. Phantom Taxes in Your Electric Bill includes a list of federal income taxes paid, and the federal income taxes charged to customers by each of the 150 private utilities in 1975. The list was compiled from information filed by the utilities with the Federal Power Commission.

Two tax breaks enacted by Congress have provided substantial tax savings for private power companies, but these savings are generally not reflected in the figure presented by the utilities to state regulatory commissions for ratesetting purposes. One tax break involves an expense item called depreciation. Using straight-line depreciation accounting methods, a company deducts from its income the cost of a new asset it has acquired, spread out evenly over the project life span of the asset. Federal tax laws now allow a company to opt to use an accelerated depreciation schedule - larger deductions in earlier years of an asset's life and smaller deductions in later years - and most utilities use accelerated depreciation accounting in preparing federal income tax returns. However, federal tax laws and most state regulatory commissions allow private utilities to "normalize" tax savings received by using accelerated depreciation.

Normalization is an accounting procedure which ignores for ratesetting purposes the tax benefits achieved by the private utilities under accelerated depreciation. EAF and NCIC estimate that, over the past twenty-one years, private power companies have accumulated over $5.4 billion in deferred taxes - taxes included in the rates charged to consumers, but which have never been paid to the government.

Private utilities claim that these taxes will be paid eventually, and that collecting them from customers before they're actually due saves the company, and its customers the costs of borrowing money elsewhere. EAF and NCIC argue that, if these private companies continue to expand, their deferred tax accounts will also expand and most of these collected taxes may never be paid to the government.

Phantom taxes, your involuntary, interest-free loan to your privately-owned power company, can be used any way that the utility wishes. EAF and NCIC report that the money is often invested in new power facilities, which belong to the company's stockholders. "Thus," they conclude, "to the extent that phantom taxes are never paid to the government, they serve to enrich the owners of utility stocks." Both accelerated depreciation and the investment tax credit themselves provide a substantial incentive for growth, and as EAF and NCIC note, expanding power facilities and promoting increasing energy consumption are no longer unquestioned social policies.

Accelerated depreciation and the investment tax credit are two of several tax breaks for private power companies which are discussed in Phantom Taxes in Your Electric Bill. Although, to a large extent, these benefits are prescribed by federal tax laws, state regulatory commissions do retain considerable authority. EAF and NCIC urge consumers to raise questions about how federal income taxes are charged to consumers at rate case proceedings before their state commissions. State utility commissions can both offer remedies for many specific instances of tax overcharges and serve as a forum for the discussion of federal tax policies. Copies of Phantom Taxes in Your Electric Bill are available for $2.50 from Environmental Action Foundation, 724 Dupont Circle Building, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Consider Drying Costs Now

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

With corn drying costs climbing each year due to higher fuel bills, it may pay more than ever to plant some shorter season hybrids this spring. Many of them will dry down to 24 per cent this fall, compared to 30 per cent for longer season hybrids.

William Schnug, Extension Agricultural Engineer at Ohio State University, said drying corn to 15.5 per cent moisture from 24 per cent rather than from 30 per cent means we need to remove almost 5 pounds less water per bushel.

The energy savings are 9800 BTU's per bushel dried and, for a 125-bushels-per-acre crop, this adds up to 1,225,000 BTU per acre, said the engineer.

Schnug calculated the value of this energy saved, in terms of commercial propane at 45 cents per gallon, amounting to 5.7 cents per bushel or $7.13 per acre.

Planting corn early is another way to assure dried corn in the field at harvest time, according to Extension Agronomists, and early planting usually helps improve yields, too.

Of course, another way to reduce the energy, and thereby the cost, of growing corn is to cut out as much tillage time as possible, Schnug said. He pointed out that when minimum tillage is used, 70 per cent of the total energy input for the crop is expended in drying, whereas with conventional tillage the drying operation requires 10 to 12 per cent more energy than the tillage and harvesting operations. These figures are based on a 125-bushels-per-acre crop filed shelled at 25 per cent moisture.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Doesn't Want To Be A Matched Pair

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor in my late 30s who receives many social invitations. I recently turned down an invitation to a dinner party. I frankly told the hostess that I was no longer accepting invitations that did not allow me to bring my own date. Very irately she told me that if I didn't want to go to parties alone I should get married.

Why do so many people think a single person should be eager to accept invitations to go to a party alone? I always feel like a fifth wheel, or else I get stuck with a dateless woman who shares my embarrassment. Am I wrong?

SINGLE SIMON

DEAR SIMON: If you'd rather bring your own date than gamble on what the hostess has paired you off with, say so. But most bachelors are invited to parties to provide escorts for the single women. And I'd like to see the dateless woman who would feel "embarrassed" to find her dinner companion a reasonably attractive, well-mannered bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: For a long time I've suspected that my husband had an apartment or room or girlfriend somewhere because he would leave home in a gray suit and come back in a navy blue.

When I first called him on this, he tried to make me believe I was losing my mind.

I am sure there is nothing wrong with me, and he is obviously changing clothes somewhere. What do you think of a man like that?

ALLENTOWN HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: I think your husband has: (1) more suits than he needs; (2) a closet elsewhere; (3) a very poor memory.

DEAR ABBY: I'm about the most mixed-up bride you've ever heard from. Our wedding date has been set and the plans are being made, but now all I want to do is run! Jerry is a wonderful young man and I should be thrilled to get him, but now I'm sorry I ever said yes. Here are some examples of why I am not sure I want to marry him. My mother says they are childish, so please tell me what you think.

1. All in fun, I threw Jerry in the pool and found out he couldn't swim! (I had to rescue him.) Abby, shouldn't he have told me? And here's a man who loves sailing and fishing.

2. His family likes to hug and kiss me. I'm not a cold person, but I don't like all that hugging and kissing on saying hello and goodbye.

3. Jerry's job will require more and more traveling. I suppose I could go with him, but what if I can't? I'm afraid to stay alone.

4. Jerry likes children, and I'm not sure I want any. (I'm really afraid of childbirth because of a movie I saw years ago.)

What should I do? I really love Jerry. I'm 22, a college graduate, but I don't want to take a job. Is it too late to back out?

NOT READY

DEAR NOT: You solution is in your signature. You are NOT ready for marriage. Call it off, and the sooner the better.

HAPPY TIGER — Melissa Allison is all smiles as she crosses home plate after hitting a homer for the Tigers Friday against Teays Valley. Her homer was one of eight belted by Circleville in the game.

Tiger Power Batters Teays Valley, 47-5

Circleville's girls continued their power hitting Friday as they overwhelmed visiting Teays Valley, 47-5. Lisa Jones was on the hill for the Tigers giving up 14 hits while McPherson and Ledford shared the hill for the Vikings and were tagged for 45 hits.

Leading the power parade for Circleville was Susan Radcliff with two homers, two doubles and a single for nine RBI's. Penny Perkins rapped a homer, double and four singles, Lisa Jones a homer, three doubles and three singles, Mary Wyatt a homer, double and two singles, Melissa Allison a homer, triple and two singles, Morehart a home run, double and single; Peters a homer and two singles; Nichelle Nolan four singles, Karen Lundberg a triple double and two singles, Johnson a double and Gockerham a triple and double.

Circleville will host Wilmington 4:30 p.m. Monday.

Ohio Tracks Get Improvement Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Racing Commission approved Friday more than $1.1 million in capital improvements for state tracks, but an official says it's too early to tell the effect of the projects.

"Ultimately," said Paul D. "Pete" Fleming Jr., the commission's executive secretary, "it should make it more convenient for fans and horsemen. That should upgrade Ohio racing."

Fleming added, "But it's too early to assess the impact of the projects."

Under new Ohio racing law approved in October 1975, the state finances up to 70 per cent of capital improvements okayed by the commission.

All seven of Ohio's commercial plants have taken advantage of the law to improve their facilities except Lebanon, a county fairgrounds that houses harness races.

Scioto Downs, a harness plant near Columbus, had the biggest project approved Friday, more than $825,000 with most of it already finished.

A new $463,415 paddock and a $215,000 lighting system comprise the majority of the improvements. Scioto Downs officials also said the project includes a new hub rail, new sound system and new vault and money room area.

The commissioners also approved a $262,424 project at Northfield Park, a harness track between Akron and Cleveland, and $66,000 in improvements at Cincinnati thoroughbred plant River Downs.

Northfield's plans are primarily in the clubhouse while River Downs is installing an electrified message board.

However, the commissioners maintained tough fiscal control over River Downs, requiring the track to post surety bond of $150,000. River Downs officials wanted the bond waived.

"The state attorney's official advised us to do this because the case still has open ends. It's not completely closed," said Henry Gurvis, the commission chairman.

Gurvis was referring to lawsuits over River Downs' failure to pay its bills under prior ownership.

Clippers Lose IL Opener, 2-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Charleston Charlies got a four-hitter from Rick Williams as they whipped Syracuse 5-1 in season-opening International League play for both baseball teams.

In other action Friday night, Toledo topped Richmond 5-1; Tidewater edged Rochester 3-2 in 10 innings, and Pawtucket blanked Columbus 2-0.

Williams went the distance for the Charlies. Singles by Garth Iorg, Danny Godby and Ernie Whitt drove in three runs in the fourth inning to give Williams all the backing he needed.

Tom Bruno gave up 12 hits to Richmond Braves batters and Larry Anderson yielded two more as the two Toledo Mud Hens pitchers left 15 men on base.

But Toledo's Alfredo Griffin drove in two runs and Richard Guerra socked a solo blast to give the Mud Hens more runs than they needed.

At Norfolk, the Tidewater Tides scored on Billy Baldwin's sacrifice fly in the 10th to edge the Red Wings. For Baldwin, it was his second RBI of the night. His first was on a single after a walk, a stolen base and an error.

Rochester got both of its runs in the fifth when Dave Ciscione tripled to send one man home and then scored on a fielder's choice.

Mike Paxton pitched a fivehitter and struck out 10 Columbus Clippers.

The season opening games drew some impression attendance totals — 8,318 in Richmond and 3,891 at Charleston, W. Va.

Braves Girls Stop Aces

Logan Elm's girls varsity stopped Amanda-Clearcreek 16-9 on the Aces diamond.

Babe Stump hurled a three-hitter to gain the win while C. Cranford was on the mound for the Aces.

Rapping the ball for the Braves were: Debbie Larson with two homers and two doubles; Brenda Bell, three singles; Diana Weaver, double and single; Diana Martin, homer and two doubles; Annette Roof, three singles; Beth Bell, double and single; Jackie Cave, two singles; Babe Stump, two singles; Krista Gifford, triple and single; Cheryl Gabriel, double and single.

The Braves reserve squad also came home a winner as they stopped the Aces, 10-3.

Marie Goodchild hurled for Logan Elm while S. Young performed the duties for the Aces.

Roana Parker rapped a homer and double for the Braves and Carla Roof slammed a homer and single.

Logan Elm will host Fisher Catholic 4:15 p.m. Monday.

Reds Pronounced 'Not Dead'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Contrary to the way it was starting to look in the third against Padre starter Brent Strom, but the Padres scrambled back to tie the game in the fifth on Gene Tenace's RBI single.

"We've been having problems sustaining leads. We've been getting ahead, but then we've gone dead instead of continuing to put numbers on the board," Morgan assessed the Reds' situation.

It wasn't that way Friday night as Bench's first homer put the Reds ahead 6-5 in the sixth and Foster's two-run shot in the ninth put the game out of reach.

"I really think it's going to be a close race in our division this year," said Morgan. "I think we're the best team but everyone else is improved so much we're going to have to play well all season to win it again." Don Stanhouse had the perfect setting in which to spark the grand opening of Olympic Stadium in Montreal, a record

Bobby Bonds Waits For History-Makers

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Bobby Bonds knows that every fourth day or so, he might look in from the outfield and watch baseball history being made.

"He's the only guy in the game capable of throwing a nohitter every time out," said Bonds in speaking of—as if you didn't know—a right-handed pitcher named Nolan Ryan.

"I thought he was going to throw another no-hitter. I really did," marvelled Bonds, who cracked one of three home runs that backed the 32nd shutout of Ryan's career as the California Angels throttled the Seattle Mariners 7-0 Friday night.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the New York Yankees 7-4, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 7-5, the Detroit Tigers topped the Kansas City Royals 4-3, and the Oakland A's edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2. The Baltimore Orioles-Texas Rangers game was rained out.

Whatever Ryan threw, the Mariners had a tough time hitting it in the first road game of their history.

And the powerful Angels bats performed well, too. Bonds, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich hit home runs to back Ryan's shutout and end a streak which saw California lose for six of the previous seven games.

Brewers 7, Yankees 4

The Milwaukee Brewers have won four games this season — three of them from the New York Yankees and two of those from Don Gullett.

Milwaukee's Sixto Lezcano has become Gullett's nemesis with key hits that have beaten the former Cincinnati left-hander twice this year.

When the teams met last Sunday, Lezcano cracked two home runs to beat New York 2-1. And Friday night he drove in three runs in Milwaukee's 7-4 triumph over Gullett.

A's 3, Twins 2

Hot-hitting rookie Mitchell Page singled in two runs and shortstop Rob Picciolo hit his first major league home run to lift Oakland over Minnesota for the A's' fifth straight triumph and seventh in their eight games this season. The RBIs gave Page 15 in eight games.

Rod Carew homered for Minnesota.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 5

Royle Stillman, left unprotected by the Baltimore Orioles when the free agent draft came along, said: "Maybe it's just as well" that happened. Friday night he drove in three runs with three singles to carry Chicago past Toronto.

The Blue Jays collected five runs in their second inning, three of them unearned. But Chicago had its own five-run inning in the sixth—capped by Stillman's two-run single.

Tigers 4, Royals 3

Ben Oglivie drove in three runs with a 430-foot homer and a sacrifice fly, carrying Detroit past Kansas City for its second victory of the season.

Royals Manager Whitey Herzog was ejected after arguing with second base umpire Al Clark. With George Brett on second and Hal McRae on first, John Mayberry tapped an apparent double play ball to Vern Riffe on the mound.

Tigers Lose SCOL Tilt To Blue Lions

Circleville traveled to Washington C.H. Friday and suffered a 9-1 setback at the hands of the Blue Lions.

Washington C.H. scored single runs in the first and second innings, erupted for four in the third, added another in the fourth and capped the scoring with two in the fifth.

The Tigers lone tally came in the top of the seventh inning when Mearle Logan walked, stole second and raced home on a single by Bo Barthelmas.

Brett Allen hurled five innings and gave up seven hits, eight walks and fanned three. Logan pitched one inning, giving up one hit and one walk.

Left hander Jeff Elliott, an All-South Central Ohio League pitcher, went all the way for the Blue Lions as he scattered two hits, two walks and fanned 14.

Brad Allison and Barthelmas each had a single for the Tigers hits.

Bonecutter, DeWeese and Burlie each had two singles to pace the Blue Lions attack.

Circleville is now 1-1 for the season, both league games, and will host Miami Trace Monday, travel to Teays Valley Tuesday, be home with Greenfield Wednesday and go to Madison Plains Friday.

This victory makes Washington C.H. 5-0 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Mustangs Suffer Extra Inning Loss

Westfall dropped a 5-2 eight inning decision to visiting Piketon Friday.

Piketon scored single runs in the top of the fifth and sixth while the Mustangs picked up lone tallies in the bottom of the same innings to send the game into extra innings.

The Red Streaks pushed across three runs in the top of the eighth inning and that was the ball game.

Adams went all the way on the hill for Westfall, allowing seven hits, five walks and seven strikeouts.

Alley hurried the distance for Piketon and gave up three hits, nine walks and whiffed 15.

Westfall scored in the fifth inning on a walk to Everman, a wild pitch and a double by Adams.

The other Mustang tally came in the sixth on a walk to Larry List, a wild pitch and double by Clem.

Clem Everman and Adams each had a double to account for Westfall's runs.

Westfall is now 0-4 overall, 0-2 in Scioto Valley League play, and travel to Liberty Union for a doubleheader today.

The new race car Hall of Fame museum at the Indianapolis Speedway is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The display includes dozens of famous race cars, classic and antique passenger autos and racing memorabilia.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): You may find it easier to do things yourself than depend on others who do not wish to cooperate. You'll do them better, too.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Avoid overexertion and excitement; make no unnecessary changes in smooth-running projects. Romance and family interests in special planetary favor.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Better than some days, less smooth than others. Strive with the best intent and only good can result. Believe, with strong faith, in yourself — and others.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Neither look for trouble nor believe it won't come just because you look the other way. Face up to situations and you won't fool yourself or find problems as difficult to solve.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't lose confidence in your ability to produce the results you want — even if temporarily stymied. Keep trying. Some dandy advantages on your side.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): There's a tendency now to act without thinking, then ask yourself the "why" of failure. Map out a workable program BEFORE starting. Also take note of new trends. Good results for like effort.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): There may be some conflict between desire and necessity. Be realistic, as you usually are, and the answer will come. Romance and travel favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): An unusual request deserves your consideration. Fulfilling it may involve some inconvenience, but you will be amply repaid. Late hours bring some surprising news.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Change, variety and travel are highlighted in your chart. You may have to make some adjustments in your life, but the challenge should prove interesting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Even though a Sunday, you may be able to complete a transaction which enhances security. A friend versed in the law could be of great help.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): The accent is on social activity. Welcome the opportunity to meet people, make new friends, perhaps make contacts which could prove invaluable, business-wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Planetary influences somewhat restrictive. Be especially careful in romance. Emotional situations could get out of hand.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly individualistic, independent and endowed with a wealth of talents upon which to draw for an eminently successful career. Depending on your leanings and education, of course, you could shine in either the business world or in the field of art — may even combine both successfully. You write very effectively and could excel in the fields of literature or journalism. You are a born money-maker and may be too materialistic at times but, at least, you should never be in want. You have a gregarious personality and your charm and wit win many friends.

Traits to curb: over-aggressiveness and extensiveness. Birthdate of: J. P. Morgan, Amherst, N.Y., William Holden, film star.

Buckeyes Stroke Ahead In Kepler
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Host Ohio State, seeking its fourth straight championship, held a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the 54-hole Kepler Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

The Buckeyes carded a 378 Friday, one better than the Ohio State Gray team. Marshall, the 1976 runnerup, was in third place at 384.

Miles Prestemon of Minnesota was the individual leader with a one-under-par 71. Knotted in second place with 72s were Johnny Cook of Ohio State, Rob Hall of Toledo, Jerry Didovic of Illinois State and Tom Fairgrieve of the OSU Gray team.

Ohio State is gunning for its fourth straight title in the 54-hole tournament, which ends Sunday.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Deal investigated the crash, which occurred on Duvall Road, three-tenths of a mile west of the Bulen-Pierce Road.

According to his report, Ms. Guzik was driving east on the Duvall Road when the right wheels of her van dropped off the berm of the road.

After fighting the vehicle for 52 feet, she regained control and brought it back to the road. However the vehicle went left of center and struck Ross' car five feet left of the center line.

Ross' car skidded 14 feet before impact.

Ms. Guzik was charged with driving left of center.

The Harrison Twp. Emergency Squad administered aid to the victims, Deputy Deal said.

Alfred S. Heeter, 44, 524 Mowrer Road, suffered lacerations and abrasions. He refused treatment, and was referred to a doctor by Deputy Sheriff Jim Fite.

Heeter told the deputy that he was driving north on Campbell Road when the steering mechanism in his car failed.

The vehicle went left of center, crashed through a fence owned by Robert Valentine, 4874 Emerson Road, and struck a South Central Ohio Electric Company utility pole.
